THIRD RED CROSS ROLL CALL WILL BEGIN SUNDAY MORNING

Membership Campaign Will Continue Until Tuesday, the 11th

CAMPAIGN IS NATION WIDE

The Third Red Cross Roll Call will be a nation-wide movement, beginning Sunday, November 2nd, and continue up to and including November 11, Armistice Day.

Charleroi will have an important part in this Roll Call, as it is the purpose of the officers of the Charleroi Chapter of the American Red Cross to enter into the campaign with all the energy possible, not only for the purpose of having all old members renew their membership, but for securing as many new members as possible. Workers to accomplish results will be taken from the members of the local organization, from the ranks of returned soldiers, the clergymen of the district, the clubs and the fraternal organizations.

The opening gun of the movement will be fired Sunday, when thousands of pastors throughout the United States will speak from their pulpits, either at morning or evening service, and from that time on until the evening of November 11th the campaign will be pushed with all the vigor possible.

The high cost of living has not affected membership costs in the American Red Cross, for all it needs is a heart and a dollar, and it is indeed very few people who cannot afford to pay this small sum in order to keep up their membership, or even to take out a new one.

The Red Cross is an organization of, by and for the American people, and it has just as important work to perform in peace as in war. This was made manifest in Charleroi, as well as many other localities last fall, when the "flu" epidemic made such inroads on the lives of the people; then it was that the Red Cross stepped in and maintained emergency hospitals, furnished the nurses, the supplies and every convenience necessary for the preservation of the lives and health of the people. It was a wonderful record for the organization, but one which can be duplicated whenever the necessities arises or conditions in any community demand.

The officers of the Charleroi Chapter hope that the people of this community will have a large share in the Third Red Cross Roll Call, and that not only will memberships be taken out, but that likewise a large number of subscriptions will be made for the Red Cross magazine, the official publication of the organization.

What the officers and all those connected in an official capacity with the organization desire, is, that during the campaign, which will continue for a period of ten days, the people in general lend their co-operation and support, and the result will be a successful campaign.

HUNTERS ARE UNABLE TO GET LICENSE

Scores of hunters in all parts of the county are unable to secure the required state license and as a result are in a quandry as to what to do. They do not wish to give up their favorite sport, and likewise they do not wish to go out hunting without the necessary license, and be arrested for violation of the game laws. A number of Charleroi hunters have been held up the past few days because of their inability to get the necessary license.

FOREIGN MINERS HAVE MUCH MONEY

A telegram from Brownsville and published in the Pittsburg papers this morning says that many union American miners with families, who have made little or no preparation for a period of idleness, are applying for work at more than a score of non-union mines in that part of the Monongahela valley. They say nothing about their union affiliations when they apply for work, and are asked no questions. Most of them are being put to work.

Indicating the financial strength of the miners in that section, a Brownsville banker, is quoted as stating that the bank deposits of foreign miners average $3,500 and that the bank deposits of American miners average $50. Three-fourths of the miners in that district are foreign born.

PRICES FIXED FOR BITUMINOUS COAL

During the period of the strike the price of coal at the mine mouth in the Pittsburg district has been re-established on a war basis. These prices are $2.60 for prepared coal; $2.35 for run of mine and $2.35 for slack. The effect of this order on contracts made at a higher price than those named is that the coal must be billed at the government price.

Mrs. Kaufle's Funeral

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Kaufle will be held Monday morning next, November 3rd, at St. Jerome's church with Requiem High Mass, interment to take place later in Calvary cemetery.

James Myers, employed at the Pittsburg Plate Glass company, sustained severe injuries this morning when he fell from a scaffold twenty feet high. Some of his ribs were broken and he sustained internal injuries. He was taken to the Charleroi-Monessen hospital.

Report of Last Sunday's Meeting of Steel Workers

A great deal of comment has taken place in the community regarding the meetings of steel workers held in Charleroi during the past six weeks, and many have been the conjectures as to what the speakers have said. The Mail is able this afternoon to present a report of the meeting held last Sunday afternoon, which it gives its readers:—

The National Committee for organizing Iron and Steel Workers held two meetings here Sunday afternoon, one in the Italian hall and the other in the Russian Hall; about 2,500 attended both meetings.

Organizer Feeney, of the Miners, opened both meetings and acted as the Chairman of the meeting in the Russian Hall. Organizer McGinley, of the Amalgamated Association, acted as Chairman of the meeting in the Italian Hall.

Feeney, in his opening remarks stated that three colored men, wearing Police badges were holding up and robbing people up on Lock Hill and that he (Feeney) was going to Pittsburgh the first thing Monday morning to file a complaint against Justice of the Peace Whitehead and these three colored hold-up men. He also stated that the strikers were being blamed for placing a "bomb" between two houses in Charleroi, but he claimed that it was placed there by others as a pretext to have their meetings stopped; that the Government Troops would be in Monessen and Donora the coming week, but for the men not to mind that, for when they came, all the Mill Deputies would be discharged.

Organizer Cannon, of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, was the next speaker and in his remarks stated that when the Government asked for subscriptions for the first, second, third and fourth Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps, and then you men subscribed you were called 100 per cent Americans, but when you ask for a six hour day you are called Foreigners and Alien Enemies, but it is men like Gary that are the Alien Enemies and you men are the true Americans, because you are willing to give your lives for the right of free speech and the right to live as a free people not as slaves, as the Steel Corporations are trying to force upon the American workmen. I am indeed gratified at the way you men of the steel mills are sticking this thing out; you are showing the true American spirit. He also stated that since the Government troops have arrived in Gary, Ind., that the National Committee have been able to hold mass meetings every other day. He criticised Justice of the Peace Whitehead for his so called discrimination against the strikers, claiming that in spite of Whitehead's injustice, Charleroi was the one white spot in Pennsylvania, due to the loyalty of Burgess Woodward.

At the close of Cannon's remarks, he and Feeney departed for the meeting in the Russian Hall, and Organizer McGinley assumed the chairmanship and in a few brief words stated that he had been away from the Charleroi, Pa. district owing to assisting in the work of organizing in the Homestead and McKeesport Districts.

The next speaker was President Zimmer of the Charleroi Trades Council. He told of the passing of an Ordinance by the Council of Charleroi, Pa., prohibiting the holding of meetings without obtaining a permit, but stated that it would not prevent the National Committee from continuing these meetings, as Burgess Woodward would grant them permits upon application.

He was followed by Organizer Tomico who spoke in Slavish, stating that the National Committee had rendered assistance to 28 of the families of Donora Strikers, also that when the Government Troops came into Monessen and Donora, that it is the intention of the Strikers to parade through Monessen to Donora and that Christ himself would not stop them and that when the Miners come out on the 1st. of November, that the Miners and Steel Workers would hold joint meetings and that no power on earth will be able to stop these meetings from being held.

The next speaker delivered an address in Greek. Then came an Italian Speaker by the name of Vorannia.

All of the above speakers delivered the same talk at the meeting in the Russian Hall, going there after the close of their remarks in the Italian Hall. Steve Kavish was an additional speaker in the Russian Hall.

Kavisch, in his remarks, stated that after the Miners came out on November 1st, the Strikers would get to work on the Railroad Employes and have them come out on a strike in a very short time, and with the Miners, Building Trades, Railroad Men and the Steel Workers fighting for the rights of the working classes, the Steel Corporations cannot do anything else but grant the just demands made upon them.

CHAUTAUQUA CIRCLE ENJOYS HALLOWE'EN

The hallowe'en spirt was very evident in the meeting of the Chautauqua Circle Friday evening, in the home of Mrs. W. B. Pfleghardt. Spooks and goblins had their way and weird looking men and women were peeping 'round the corners. The Makic City Chautauqua Circle recently received honorable mention in the Chautauqua magazine and the year's reading has been entered into with new zeal. The present book being read is "America Among the Nations," by H. H. Powers, and it is a story of America at home and in the great world. At the close of the reading the Circle joined in a musical program, and during the social hour the company found many secrets by paring apples and throwing the peel over the shoulder. Refreshments were served by the hostess and the hallowe'en favors were much appreciated by all the guests. Mrs. McNaughton, who is one of the most loyal Chautauquans of the valley, was the guest of honor.

MINES IN THE COKE REGION WILL CONTINUE TO OPERATE

PICK UP RUNAWAYS FROM CHILDREN'S HOME

Thomas Harding, a boy from the Children's Home at Arden, was picked up by Officer Welsh last night and placed in the borough building for the time being. In company with Lawrence Ross of Charleroi he ran away from the Home yesterday morning, making the trip by means of street cars and autos. Thomas said he came here to get a job. The officials of the Home will be communicated with as to what disposition shall be made of the two boys. The Ross boy will also be taken in charge by the local authorities.

GOVERNOR CAUTIONS AGAINST DISORDER

Governor Sproul issued the following statement from Harrisburg Friday evening with reference to conditions as they now exist, caused by the suspension of work at the bituminous mines in this state:

"It appearing that the general officers of the miners' organization have definitely ignored the suggestion of the President of the United States and the offer of mediation by the secretary of labor and have ordered a strike of those who would pledge allegiance to this leadership over their loyalty to the government and their duty to fellow citizens, I give notice that the full power of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania through all of its agencies will be used to protect those who desire to continue at work and to suppress disorder wherever and whenever it may arise.

"The state cannot tolerate the intimidation of individuals and interference with them in their peaceful and lawful occupations and those others will be treated as offenders of the peace of the commonwealth. The carrying or possession of firearms, weapons or explosives, except for those especially authorized by law must be rigidly dealt with by officers of the commonwealth at this time.

"The movement of large numbers of persons from place to place in organized parades or otherwise in times of unsettlement or excitement may result in violence and danger and the state cannot allow such movements, nor any other demonstration which might lead to disorder.

"The government of Pennsylvania will protect its citizens and others, who may be within the borders of the state, in their rights and those who interfere with these rights must expect to be dealt with as the laws of the commonwealth provide and to be pursued and apprehended and punished now or hereafter, if they offend against these laws.

"Solemn warning is given that every effort will be made to maintain the peace and those who break our laws and the necessary police regulations of our municipalities and our counties must take the consequences."

Will Work Full Time of Six Days Per Week During Strike

UNION MINES ARE ALL CLOSED

The strike order for the bituminous mines which went into effect at 12 o'clock last midnight, will have but little effect in the Connellsville coke region. It is reported that practically 30,000 miners in that field, employed by H. C. Frick Coke Company, will continue working six days per week, and the usual eight hours per day. All of the product of this company will be delivered to the United States Steel Corporation.

According to the priority order issued by the government all coal shipments for by-product coke plants have been suspended by rail but this will not affect the shipments by river to the big plant at Clairton. It may be likely also that but little coke will be made in the Connellsville field, all of the raw coal being diverted to industries that may need it for fuel.

The H. C. Frick Coke company and other independent operators will urge increased production, and to that full shifts will be put to work for the first time in years. This will give the men employed in these plants to realize excellent returns for their labor, for all of the mines operating as non-union in that section of the state will have more orders than they can fill.

It is also reported that every non-union mine in Westmoreland county will continue to operate. It is said that only mines owned by the Pittsburg Coal company are organized there.

All of the union mines in the valley and in Washington county are idle today. The full extent of the shutdown will be realized on Monday, when it will be possible to obtain a clearer idea of the full extent of the strike. There are a number of districts which are not organized and it is anticipated these will remain at work. In Greene county, while the number of mines is small, yet they are unorganized and it is expected they will continue to operate.

Both national and state governments are following events connected with the strike, and have given promise of protection to any and all miners who desire to remain at work. United States troops are already located in West Virginia, as well as in Ohio, and will be sent to other points where mines are located if the necessity should arise.

ANDERSON ALLEN

Anderson Allen, colored, died at the Mercy hospital, Pittsburg, Friday morning at 4 o'clock aged 45 years. The remains were brought to his late home in Speers, from where the funeral will take place Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with interment in Charleroi cemetery.

ALWAYS WARNING OF RAIN

Birds, Insects, and Weeds Foretell Downpour to Those Who Are at All Observant.

The shepherd among his sheep or the laborer on the farm will not hesitate in his reply to the often asked question, for these men of the fields are almost uncannily weather wise. Their barometer is not only the moon, the clouds, the stars, but also the beasts, birds, insects and weeds.

The following signs, among others, warn the countryman of the coming rain or storms, " M. P. M." writes in the continental edition of the London Mail:

A flight of swallows skimming low.

The continued sound of croaking frogs from the ditches.

The silence of singing birds in the woods.

The pimpernel on the banks with its scarlet blossoms closed against the onslaught of the storm.

The extra brilliance of the stars (on the eve of rain).

The haze around the moon.

Spiders seeking refuge within the cottage or the barn.

POET WAS ERRATIC GENIUS

Thomac Chatterton Did Marvelous Work Before His Suicide at the Age of Eighteen.

That marvelous boy poet, Thomas Chatterton, a youth with wonderful attainments but whose genius was erratic, died before he was 18 years old, on Aug. 25, 1770, by taking arsenic "in anticipation of a slower death by starvation."

From his earliest childhood, Chatterton had a ghastly familiarity with the idea of suicide, and among his papers preserved in the British museum is a last will and testament. "Executed in the [illegible] of his sentence, the 14th of April, 1770," full of the wildest wit and profanity. While there is a peculiar interest to all he wrote, he is best remembered as the author of the so-called "Rowley Poems," which number nearly four-score, "Kilmour and Juga" being the only one which appeared during the lifetime. Some of them possess that beauty of imagination with which we associate the work of Keats and Coleridge. These poets as well as Rosetti and William Morris, owed much to Chatterton.

During the last few months of his life he worked with a hundred hands and poured forth satiric poems, political essays, burlesques, letters in the style of Junius, and mediated writing a history of England. For a time his prospects seemed to brighten, and while many editors were willing to used his articles and gave him praise, few were willing to pay for them.

Why the Moon's Phases.

The light of the moon is due entirely to reflection of the light of the sun, and the different phases of the moon to its position in relation to the position of the earth and the sun. When there is a new moon, half of the surface of the moon is illuminated, but the greater portion is turned from the earth and only a delicate crescent appears to us. At the first quarter, half of the illuminated surface is turned toward us, and at the fifteenth day the moon reaches a point in the heavens directly opposite to that which the sun occupies. She is then in opposition, and the whole of the illuminated surface is turned toward us, and we have a full moon. From opposition the moon passes on in her orbit, gradually decreasing in size, or rather less and less of the illuminated part being turned toward the earth.

Bells.

Bells are old, old inventions. Centuries and centuries ago, even before Christ, the ceremonies of Isis were celebrated with bells, and later, according to Exodus, there were "a golden bell and a pomegranate, a golden bell and a pomegranate, upon the hem of the robe"—the robe of ephod. Bells have summoned soldiers to arms and Christians to church. They have rung fires and tumults. On the third day of Easter in 1282, 8,000 French were massacred in cold blood by John of Procida at the ringing of Sicilian vespers. On the 24th day of August, St. Bartholomew's day, in 1572, bells rang in the massacre of 100,000 Huguenots. At the time of Nelson's triumph and death at Trafalgar, the bells of Chester rang a merry peal alternated with one dead toll.

Pro and Con.

"They tell me women have no strength of character."

"Nonsense!"

"That's what I say. Did you ever hear of an aviatrix stopping in midair to powder her nose?"

"No, sir. I never did. But do you suppose she is going to meet anybody in midair who can see whether or no' her nose is shiny?"—Birmingham Age Herald.

Opening of Panama Canal.

In 1914, on August 15, the Panama canal was formally opened to the world. The canal had been nine years in building. The total cost of construction, exclusive of fortifications, civil government and payments to the republic of Panama, was approximately $387,000,000. The first passage after the formal opening of the canal was made by the steamship Ancon. Colonel Goethals, governor of the canal zone, was on board. The passage from Cristobal to Balboa was accomplished in nine hours.

Professional Enemies of Crocodile.

There are men whose business it is to catch crocodiles and who earn their living by that means. And whenever a human being has fallen a victim a professional crocodile catcher is asked to help to destroy the murderer, and a large reward offered him. The majority of natives will not interfere with the reptiles, or take any part in their capture, probably fearing if they do anything of the kind they themselves may some time or other suffer for it by being attacked by a crocodile.

To Clean Diamonds.

Diamond dust is a fine dust produced from cutting diamonds. It is extensively used by jewelers, chiefly for cleaning diamonds. It may be procured in any jewelry store, together with instructions for its use. Another quite satisfactory way to clean diamonds is to make a lather of soap, add a little ammonia and apply this cleansing preparation to the stones with a tooth brush.

Territory Taken From Spain.

At the close of the war with Spain the American government obtained possession of Porto Rico, Guam and the Philippines, agreeing to pay Spain $20,000,000 and give Spanish ships special trading privileges in the Philippines for ten years. Neither statehood nor citizenship was promised to any of the islands taken over and they are governed as territorial possessions.

The Crow Family.

The crow family is placed by ornithologists at the head of the bird world as being more highly organized than any other. Linnaeus gave the post of honor to the eagles, because of their kingly quality of rapacity, but two great authorities, Professor Parker and Professor Newton, agreed in assigning the highest place to the corvidae.

"Poor Man's Weather Glass."

The figures of which the leaves of the horse-chestnut are made up keep flat and faulike so long as the fine weather is likely to continue. With the coming of rain, however, they droop, as if to offer less resistance to the weather. The scarlet pimpernel is known in England as the poor man's weather-glass, and opens its flowers only when the weather is fair.

Sought Trees for Protection.

Tree dwellers are found among savages in various parts of the world. According to the scientists the first habitations of mankind were in the trees as the most adequate protection against the many enemies of the early type of man. It was only in the later period of man's evolution that he was strong enough to hold his own on the ground.

The Cautious Elephant.

Ancient chronicles tell us that the Romans sometimes tested their military bridges by sending an elephant out on them, and then watching to see whether the cautious beast would cross. Even to this day the natives in India set great store by the elephant's caution.

Really Small Flats.

Verona was much impressed with her first night in a berth on a sleeper, and in relating some of the wonders of her trip, remarked: "Why, Aunt Emma, the flats were so small we couldn't all live together. Mamma and I slept in the first flat and daddy in the second flat."

With the exception of black ones, it is said that to dream of cats is unlucky. If the animals scratch, the dreamer must beware of a rival in love. To dream of chasing a cat means disappointment over something.

Inexpensive Fun.

Probably complaining about everything all the time does no real good, but it seems to be about the only way we can have any fun at all and still live within our means.—Ohio State Journal.

"Roughing It."

Hostess—Now, everybody, you'll have to drink your champagne out of Burgundy glasses, and the caviar hasn't come, but I know you don't mind roughing it.—Life.

Substitute for Leather.

Unwoven cotton dipped in various solutions and then compressed is said to make an excellent substitute for leather.

Look for the Best.

Every man and woman on earth has some good quality, if you will only take the trouble to look for it.

Watering House Plants.

Plants should be watered with a spray, not with a cup or a glass. Those that can be moved should be placed where the water will not damage carpets or floors; those that cannot—such as large ferns or palms—should have something spread on the floor beneath them to catch the water as it drips. The water must be sprayed from above so that all the leaves receive it: this carries off the dust and is the only natural way for a plant to receive water.

An Indispensable.

Some years ago, in a certain flagship, the commander had occasion to find fault with the admiral's cook, and awarded him three days of the punishment known at that period as Ten A. The admiral heard of the affair, and sent for the commander on the quarterdeck. "What do you mean by it?" stormed the incensed admiral. "Please to understand that I can get a hundred commanders like you, but only one cook like him!"

Too Hasty.

"Mr Crawley, can you lend me"—"No, sir, I can't! And if I could I wouldn't. I have been lending you money for a year, and you make no effort to return it!" "But I would like to know if you wouldn't lend me—" "And I told you beforehand, I won't." "Well, then, don't! I wanted to borrow your fountain pen to make out a check for what I owe you; but if you're in no hurry, I'm not!"

A certain eminent lawyer was appointed head of a government department, and he was anxious that all the members of the staff should work together in unison. He summoned the leading officials, and after delivering an address on the desirability of thorough co-operation, concluded by saying: "Gentlemen, in my profession when a jury disagrees it is discharged, I think I need say no more!"

Useful Asset.

Poet—"I sent you some verses about three weeks ago. What have you done with them?" Editor—"I'm holding them. Every little while lately I get thinking that we are not getting out as good a paper as we ought, and then I take those verses and see how much worse the sheet might be, and that makes me cheerful again!"

The Lilac Tree.

The lilac is perhaps, all things considered, the most splendid of flowering trees. Everybody is familiar with its fragrance. The tree belongs to the olive family and is closely allied to the common privet, but it bears no fleshy fruit and is valueless except for the splendor of its blossoms.

SELF-DENIAL MEANS SUCCESS

Much Food for Thought in Analysis of the Lives of One Hundred Average Men

The American Bankers' association has compiled and published the actual life experience of 100 men. It is an illuminating analysis of the good and bad fortune that come to the average of mankind. Here it is:

At age 22: 100 men all strong and vigorous with good mental and physical capacity.

At age 35: 5 have died; 10 are wealthy; 10 are in good circumstances; 40 have moderate means; 35 have saved nothing.

At age 45: 16 have died; 3 are wealthy; 65 are self supporting, but without resources; 16 are no longer self-supporting.

At age 55: 20 have died; 1 very wealthy; 3 are in good circumstances; 46 are self-supporting, but without means; 30 are dependent on children, relatives or charity for support.

At age 65: 36 have died; 1 very wealthy; 3 are wealthy; 6 self-supporting by labor; 54 are dependent on children, relatives or charity for support.

At age 75: 66 are dead; 60 of these left no estate; 3 are wealthy; 43 are dependent upon children, relatives or charity for support; 95 per cent of these will not leave sufficient means to defray funeral expenses:

In spite of all preaching, economy and thrift are not common qualities. The large majority of men insist on living up to their income regardless of the amount of those incomes. Self-denial is a hard thing, yet self-denial nine times out of ten is the secret of substantial success.—Wheeling Intelligencer.

INSPIRED AT ODD MOMENTS

Brilliant Thoughts That Have Come to Men of Genius in Their Hours of Repose

There is a photograph, with which most of us are no doubt familiar, of Mark Twain at work in bed—holding his writing pad on his knees, and having the things he needed for his labor disposed about on tables on either side. But the idea of working in bed was not original with Mark. Many eminent men before him did the same thing, a writer in the Philadelphia Ledger says. Indeed, no, small part of the world's literary treasure has been produced between the sheets by physical indolent although mentally active men of genius.

One of the best known lines in English poetry came into its author's head when he was actually asleep. While visiting at Minto, Thomas Campbell one evening went to bed early, with his mind full of a new poem. About 2 o'clock in the morning he suddenly awakened repeating, "Events to come cast their shadows before." Ringing the bell sharply, he summoned a servant. The man found Campbell with one foot in bed and one on the floor.

"Are you ill, sir?" he asked.

"I was never better in my life," said the poet. "Leave the candle and bring me a cup of tea."

Seizing his pen he put down the happy thought, changing "events to come" into "coming events," and over the noninebriating cup, he finished the first draft of "Lochiel's Warning."

Twenty-Year-Old Trout.

The death has occurred in the south of Scotland of a trout which for twenty years had survived in a well. The fish was caught in an adjoining stream — the river Evan, a tributary of the Annan, near Moffat, and was placed in a well formed in a burn adjacent to a remote railway signal-box, a few miles north of Beattock, on the Caledonian main line. The signalman who at the time was in charge of the cabin took a lively interest in the fish as also did various engine drivers and other workers on that section of the line, when intervals permitted of their visiting the "aquarium," with its solitary occupant. The trout gradually became quite tame and docile, and was accustomed to swim boldly to the edge of the well to receive tit-bits from visitors, in the form of worms or insects suitable to its appetite.

Weathervanes seem to date from early times. According to Ducange, the cock was originally devised as an emblem of clerical vigilance. The large tail of the cock was adapted to turn with the wind. Many churches have for a vane the emblem of the saints to whom they are dedicated. St. Peter's Cornhill, London, is surmounted with a key, St. Peter having the keys of heaven and hell. St. Laurence has for a vane a gridiron, and St. Laurence at Norwich has the gridiron with the holy martyr extended upon the bars. A gilt ship in full sail is the vane upon St. Mildred's Church in the Poultry. St. Michael's, Queenhithe, has a ship, the hull of which will hold a bushel of grain, referring to the former traffic in corn at the hithe.—London Chronicle.

Wouldn't Give Up Easily.

Mother was to entertain company, so Billy was put to bed earlier than usual. Billy resented this, and as an excuse said he didn't like to have the women see him in bed when they went upstairs to lay aside their wraps. Mother explained that as the women lived near by and because it was such a warm night the guests would come without hats or coats. It looked like bed for Billy, but as a last resort he said, "Oh but, mother, surely they will wear their summer furs."

ABOUT LOVE AND MARRIAGE

Signs Reveal Something, but Fact Remains That We All Have to Take a Chance.

No man is ever really in love who can say so with all the ease, ardor and eclat of a stage lover. No man ever loved a woman just because she was good. The man who says pretty things to his wife all the time may have had lots of practice either before or since his marriage.

The husband who never gives his wife a decent word or a compliment would knock down any other man who would treat her in the same way.

The sincerest lovers are those who are tongue-tied, and don't know where to put their feet.

A man who seems very stupid in a crowd can often be extremely interesting in a dimly-lit, cozy corner with only one other person present.

There are two kinds of courage—the courage of the limelight, which prompts a nice young man in white ducks to jump overboard after a girl's handkerchief, and the real courage that makes a man face the horrors of a fashionable wedding, the torture of meeting the bills of a housekeeping apartment, and the agonies of walking the floor all night with a baby. The two are seldom coupled in one young man.

The first wife of a widower never was such an angel as she seems to him after his second marriage.

A man is like a piece of cloth—warranted to wash—and matrimony is the laundry. It may improve him, give him starch and freshen him up, or it may take all the color out of him. You have to take the chances.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

GOLDEN HOURS NEVER FOUND

Stories of Vast Wealth Hidden in West Indies May Be Merely Romantic Tales.

The British West Indies may not be worth much in money but they are rich in money tradition. It was the lure of these islands that brought the avaricious gold hunters of Columbus, way across the seas in search of the fabled wealth of the western isles. It was here that the brave British admirals went to "singe the king of Spain's beard."

Stories of sunken money-ships and buried treasures in and around the islands are numerous. Capt. Kidd, Morgan and many other famous buccaneers made the islands their rendezvous. Sir Walter Raleigh went there and so did the ill fated Darien.

In later years the islands were fought over by the Spanish, British, Dutch and French. The latter were supposed to be very rich, but when the British drove them from the island they were unable to find the hidden gold.

An old negress once told a story that renewed interest in this fabled French wealth. An old man approached her, she said, and asked directions to the grave of her mistress' youngest child. She told him and the man dug up the coffin. He opened it and took out three of four handfuls of jewels. He disappeared, after saying that he was a grandson of one of the old French pirates, who had concealed the jewels.

Etiquette of Snuff Taking.

The taking of snuff, which was indispensable to its period, has died out. The taking of snuff had a peculiar etiquette. A pinch pointed an epigram: it symbolized indifference, contempt and, on the other hand, the box extended in a friendly manner, expressed admiration, a desire for better acquaintance. The box was a refuge from idle questioners. A vigorous rap on the closed box put an end to argument.

The box itself was a work of art. It was adorned with precious stones, or paintings, or quaint mottoes. When a monarch wished to show his appreciation of a musician, artist, poet, he presented him with a gold snuff box filled with louis d'or. When the practice was at its height, an Earl Stanhope reckoned that if a man took snuff for 40 years, two years of his life were spent in tickling his nose and two more to the blowing of it.

CHANGES IN ORBIT OF MOON

Explains Fact That Eclipses Do Not Occur on or About Same Dates Every Year

Lunar eclipses always occur at full moon, or when the sun and moon are in opposition, and are caused by the moon passing through earth's shadow. As the moon in her course passes the sun once every month, and also places the earth between herself and the sun once a month, it is evident that if she moved in the plane of the eclipse there would be either a total or annular eclipse of the sun and a total eclipse of the moon every month. They do not happen every full moon because the moon's orbit is inclined to the ecliptic the great circle of the heavens round which the sun seems to travel from west to east in the course of a year, allowing her to pass the sun to an angle of nearly 5 degrees and 9 minutes to the north and south of his track, preventing such a frequent occurrence of eclipses. From the magnitude of the angle of inclination of her orbit to the ecliptic an eclipse can only occur on a full moon happening when the moon is at or near one of her nodes, or points where her orbit intersects the eclipse. Therefore, if the moon does not travel on the ecliptic, which would result in a lunar eclipse every full moon, it is logical to say that the moon does not follow the same orbit year after year. If the moon followed the same orbit year after year lunar eclipses would occur on or about the same dates every year, but the fact is that they might occur any full moon.—Kansas City Star.

GRIZZLY IS FAST VANISHING

Final Disappearance of Really Noble Animal to Be Regretted by All Who Knew Him.

The grizzly bear has been known to the white race little more than a century. Lewis and Clark wrote the first official accounts of him in 1805, and he was first discussed publicly in 1814 by Gov. De Witt Clinton in New York city. Guthrie's geography says that he was named Ursus horribilis by Naturalist George Ord in 1815. Fossil records indicate that the grizzly is of Asiatic origin. He appears to have come into America about a million years ago over one of the pre-historic land bridges that united Alaska and Asia. Bears and dogs are descendants from the same parent stock. The grizzly bear never eats human flesh, is not ferocious and fights only in self-defense. He leads an adventurous life, is a born explorer and ever has good wilderness manners — never makes attacks. The numerous cases in which the grizzly has been made a pet and companion of man, where he was thoughtfully, intelligently raised, show him to be a superior animal, dignified, intelligent, loyal and uniformly good-tempered. Not a grizzly exists in any of the four national parks of California, and that animal, once so celebrated in that state, is extinct there. He is also extinct over the greater portion of the vast territory which he formerly occupied, and is verging on extermination.

The Radish.

Who disdains the humble radish? Certainly not Miss Trouard-Riolle, a young French woman who has chosen the radish as the subject of her theme for the doctor's degree of the Faculte de Paris. The radish, it now turns out, is no mere mushroom of the vegetable world. Besides its edible qualities it wears the halo of tradition. Hence the enthusiasm of Miss Trouard-Riolle. She has discovered, after arduous research, that the radish was known of the Egyptians and of the Chinese. As yet research has not provided any clue to the whereabouts of the radish from the early times to the beginning of the fifteenth century, when it entered France in varied coats of black, of white, and red. It must be left to Miss Trouard-Riolle, or others of the same indefatigable curiosity to discover.

Warblers of All Colors.

Not taking into account the human beings who are sometimes referred to as warblers, you will find on looking into a bird book that there are many kinds of warblers, ranging alphabetically all the way from gray-breasted [illegible] to yellow-rumped warblers, [illegible] the American Forestry association, Washington.

If you had a collection of them all together they would take in about all the colors of the rainbow, yellow, orange, chestnut, black, white, green, gray, brown and other colors, with numerous shades entering into their beautiful plumage.

Radio Telephone Useful.

The extraordinary value of wireless telephony for directional purposes in connection with aircraft has been emphasized recently in its relation to night flying, says the Scientific American. It often happens of course, that in daylight inter-communication between planes, or between wireless stations and aircraft, is unnecessary, but in flying across country at night the use of the wireless telephone will certainly become more efficacious.

Operating Under Difficulties.

The Huan provincial government is operating directly the Shui Kou Shan [illegible] silver mine, one of the largest in China. The ore is being smelted as it is mined, but the government is short of funds and the lack of sufficient capital is a serious handicap.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL

The American Red Cross has announced its Third "Roll Call," beginning November 2 and ending on the first anniversary of Armistice Day, November 11. For its splendid performances of the past, not only in the war, but in many cases of domestic emergency, such as last year's epidemic of influenza, and in innumerable cases of disaster, the Red Cross may well ask the endorsement of the American people, confident that it will be given.

In addition to this great record, however, the organization has planned a comprehensive peace-time program including the promotion of public health, the extension of the nursing resources of the country, the teaching of First Aid, and many other equally important subjects. On this platform as well as on past achievement the continued support of the American people should be given, not only cheerfully, but enthusiastically.

The American Red Cross is an organization which the American people should continue for all time. It is conducted with the utmost economy, most of its chief officials giving their services without remuneration, so that practically the entire sum raised by the dues and contributions of its members is devoted to relief purposes. Its splendid work in time of disaster, famine or epidemic has saved thousands of lives and kept many thousands more from suffering, if not from actual death.

Every American citizen, male and female, should consider it both an honor and a duty to be a member of the American Red Cross. Pennsylvania hopes to enlist two million members in the coming Roll Call, as the ten-day period for securing members is called. If the people of the State fully understand what the Red cross of the past has done and what the Red Cross of the future plans to do, Pennsylvania will enroll a far greater number than this. Every one should join.

REPUBLICAN DOCTRINE

It has been pointed out that the great leaders of the Republican party have always maintained the cause of Americanism. The stand taken by the party today is in entire accord with its position in the past. It is not an accident that the Republican party has been called upon to put American interests in the foreground.

One of the clearest statements of this principle was made by President McKinley in his first inaugural, when he said:

"It has been the policy of the United States, since the foundation of the government, to cultivate relations of peace and amity with all the nations of the world. We have cherished the policy of non-interference with the affairs of foreign governments, wisely inaugurated by Washington, keeping ourselves free from entanglement, either as allies or foes, content to leave undisturbed with them the settlement of their own concerns. It will be our aim to pursue a firm, dignified foreign policy, which shall be just, impartial, ever watchful of our national honor, and always insisting upon the lawful rights of American citizens everywhere. Our diplomacy should seek nothing more and accept nothing less than is due us."

A GREAT AMERICAN

William Howard Taft's tribute to Theodore Roosevelt is of more than passing interest. Mr. Taft viewed the life and character of Mr. Roosevelt in perspective as a powerful force for good and a tremendous factor in the national equation. "Theodore Roosevelt is not dead; his influence still lives," said Mr. Taft. Discussing the dangers of the times he added—"What can meet them? Only the high spirit of Americanism for which Theodore Roosevelt wished to live and was willing to die."

Mr. Taft's judicial mind, his capacity for weighing the evidence fairly and reaching a proper conclusion in painting a word portrait of Theodore Roosevelt was conspicuous when he said: "It is in this juncture that the living influence of Theodore Roosevelt and his robust and his triumphant Americanism can do so much for our country and righteousness. "What greater tribute has been uttered than this—"Therefore he live. Therefore his spirit speaks for the Americanism for which he was the chief exponent. This is the precious legacy which Theodore Roosevelt, dying, has left to the American people.

TAKES OWN MEDICINE

Col. Edward Martin, of the Department of Health, Harrisburg, is a believer in taking his own medicine and in compelling his immediate force to do the same says the Minessen News. For instance, he requires the employes in his big department to throw open the windows at intervals and exercise in order to keep in god physical condition. He also believes that bodily ills can be traced directly to neglect and will not stand for inefficiency as a result of carelessness. He is going to keep an efficiency chart, based on physical fitness, and all employes will be subjected to regular physical examinations.

Col. Martin likewise insists that the female employes shall include overshoes in their wardrobes this fall. This example is going to accomplish much and a thoroughly fit force in the same Department of Health will have an influence upon all other State Departments, and incidentally the public.

His Mind in the Clouds.

Rev. George Harvest was to have been married to the daughter of Bishop Compton of London, but on the morning fixed for the ceremony forgot all about it and went off fishing. Much indignation was felt by the bride and her friends, and the engagement was broken off. But the reverend gentleman's second engagement was equally unsuccessful. Once more he forgot to come up to the church and lost his expectant bride in consequence.

Another "Origin of Dixie."

Before the Civil war the old Citizens' bank of New Orleans, having the power to issue paper money, provided quantities of bills, most of ten-dollar denomination, having the French word "Dix" on their backs. This money became popular, according to this theory, Louisiana was referred to as the land of the "Dixies." Eventually the term was broadened to include all of the southern states.

High Price Paid for Beefsteak.

The highest price ever paid for beefsteak was probably at Circle City, Alaska, a town that sprang up over night during the Klondike gold excitement. The first beefsteak to reach there sold for $48 a pound. Every one wanted some of it, and so they raffled it off for the benefit of a hospital. Tickets were sold from 50 cents to $2.50 for the privilege of drawing a slice.

The Flowing Tide.

No one, however great his genius or high his position, is all-important to the world: its work will go on without him. There may be ripples and disturbances in the current for a time where he sinks out of sight, but the tide will soon be flowing on as before. This truth may be painful to personal vanity, but it is comforting to every generous soul that cares more for others than for self.

"French Leave."

This expression arose in the early part of the eighteenth century, through certain guests, in the salons of France, not aware of the higher acts of courtesy, leaving without saying good-by to the host or hostess. The practice spread to society in this country. Therefore, if a man left without saying good-by to his host, it was said he took "French leave."

Men of Probity.

Good literature proceeds from men of natural probity, and since one ought rather to praise the inception than the result, you should give greater praise to a man of probity unskilled in letters than one skilled in letters but devoid of probity.—Leonardo da Vinci (translated by Edward McCurdy).

Spirit Meant for All.

That spirit which suffices quiet hearts, which seems to come forth to such from every dry knoll of sere grass, from every pine stump and half-imbedded stone on which the dull March sun shines, comes forth to the poor and hungry, and to such as are of simple taste.—Emerson.

Consider Probable End.

Better it is, toward the right conduct of life, to consider what will be the end of a thing, than what is the beginning of it: for what promises fair at first may prove ill, and what seems at first a disadvantage may prove very advantageous.—Wells.

Jewish Sabbath.

The Jewish Sabbath starts at sunset on Friday, because the Jews, like the ancient Greeks, began their day at sunset and not at sunrise, or immediately after midnight, as we do, who follow the ancient Romans.

TRUST TOO MUCH TO LUCK

Few Have Proper Preparation for Work Which They Undertake to Do in Life.

Many persons go through life for a long time with a veil, as it were obscuring their clear vision. They do not understand life as it is; they prefer to try to make of it what they think it should be in order to satisfy their ambitions; they do not like the obstacles that bar their paths; they want the right of way and cannot understand why they may not always have it. It is a difficult thing to make headway in any undertaking when we are compelled to grope in the darkness and feel our steps. We do our best, perhaps, but even so we make mistakes and set ourselves far back in our endeavors simply because we are not prepared for the work in hand. No one may even hope to accomplish really worth while results unless he understands the needs of the task in hand and is prepared to meet them. Good preparation is the foundation for our lifework, and unless our foundations are solid it is impossible to build strongly upon them for the future. That is why so many of us make such sorry failures of life. We have had nothing on which to build. The flimsy little base upon which we seek to set our lifework is not large enough to bear the hard strain of earnest effort. It gives way under the first heavy pressure and we find ourselves in the dark. Again we begin to feel our way and again we trust to luck to get results that will be worth having. —Charlestown News and Courier.

MOMENTOUS DAY IN HISTORY

Julius Caesar Said to Have Landed in Britain on Twenty-seventh Day of August.

According to calculations carefully made and that, at the least, establish a probable case, August 27 is the anniversary of the landing of Julius Caesar in the island of Britain.

In his wars that resulted in the conquest of Gaul, or modern France, Julius Caesar kept a journal, in which he recorded all his operations. He called it, "Commentaries," and it has been pronounced to be perhaps the best record of campaigns ever written by a general in the field.

In the midst of these operations he found time to cross the channel and pay a military visit to the land known now as England, but not so known then, for the ancient Britons then inhabited the island. He states the year of that visit, which, according to our calendar, was 55 B. C. He also states other facts which enabled the calculation as to month and day to be made.

Caesar in his journal, or "Commentaries," relates that he set out on the expedition when little of summer remained, when the people of the south of Britain are engaged in their harvest, and that after a stay of three weeks, he returned to Gaul before the equinox. It is, therefore, concluded that the day of landing must have been in August.

A Teacher's Observation.

Really when I come to think on the various fortunes of my pupils after they went from under my charge, I am as much diverted and moved to laughter at the way and proceedings that were followed out by some as I am sobered into sorrow at the sad and pathetic fate that befell several others. If I could say conscientiously, that the wisest man always turned to be the happiest or the most fortunate, greatly should I be gratified. But truly, it hath never consisted with the little philosophy that I have gathered in going about the world, to deal much in general rules or specified conclusions; and I have often from my observations been rather tempted to say, with the proverb-making king, that folly was in some cases better than wisdom, and lightness of heart more to be envied than sobriety and sense—Andrew Picken.

It's a good thing to assure yourself before taking important steps. Sometimes you are too busy to give much time to things. At other times you may be too sure of yourself. Both cases are full of calamity. To be sure you may be able to do the right thing by intuition and do it with haste. As a rule the great things of life upon which important matters hang take time. You must know the facts if you are to advise others. You must know the facts to be able to make success of things. Remember it's not the amount of energy you put into a thing that gets results. A locomotive out of control is a mad thing of unlimited energy. The very power is the danger. It must be regulated to make it useful —Exchange.

Cultivate Decision.

Decision is an asset to character. When rightly exercised you know and others know what you dare attempt. Each new problem is met with the spirit of decision and the result is continued progress. This grows on people and they learn to expect success. And that's half the battle. If you are not sure what the future has in store, decide to make the most of each revelation as it comes. You are just like other people if you yield to fear. You become a leader of them when you make every factor count for decision and progress. The consciousness of your own strength will help you and others to right relations in life.

HONOR NOT ENTIRELY WATT'S

At Least Two Inventors Before Him Had the Idea of the Value of Steam Power.

It is a popular idea that we owe the steam engine entirely to the inventive genius of James Watt.

The idea, however, is quite erroneous, for steam was in use as a motive power before he came on the scene. Several types of steam engine were in use, notably Savory's and Newcomen's.

But they were cumbersome, extravagant, and of small power, and it was while repairing a model of a Newcomen engine that Watt, who was working as a mathematical instrument maker at the time, evolved various improvements, notably the separate condenser.

Meeting Matthew Boulton, a manufacturer of metal goods, he entered into partnership and they produced engines, which at once established Watt's reputation. Improvements and inventions followed quickly, one after the other, and the present-day advance in motive power is due to the pioneer work of Watt. Even today the steam engine remains the same in principle as Watt evolved it.

It is an interesting fact, by the way, that Watt's workshop, exactly as he left it, still exists at Heathfield hall, Handsworth, where the engineering genius spent the last nineteen years of his life carrying on scientific investigations.—London Tit-Bits.

FRIENDS OF SUNNY FRANCE

Until the eventual fixture of the Hanoverian line on the throne of Britain, there was always a company, at least, of Scots in the Royal Guard in France. When Louis IX made his fatal crusade in Egypt, a Scottish legion fought under the Bourbon standards. Likewise, in all the marches of Jeanne d'Arc there were Scottish volunteers. Scottish schools, academies, hospitals, convents and other institutions flourished in France for many years. Queen Marie, it is said, spent her last years in exile in one of the Scottish convents in Paris.

During these centuries, all France was a land of pilgrimage for the Scots. Trains of pilgrims were seen annually assembling at Saint Waast. Pious Scots also founded shrines at Meaux, Rheims and in many secluded vales of Champagne. As late as 1810 manuscripts attest the presence of Scottish emigrants, whose names soon became confused with French forms.

It is said that one French king, despairing of the frivolity of his heir, said to him, "If thou should govern them badly, I would far rather that a Scot came to rule over them."

Dissatisfaction.

The old saying that some folks would find fault if they were going to be hanged is undoubtedly true. There are too many dissatisfied human beings, a minority, to be sure, but enough to shade the picture which portrays our everyday life. Hanging is a serious matter, and no one can wonder if its contemplation causes dissatisfaction to the hero of the occasion, but lesser ills and woes, and common things like wind and weather, lack of money, unpleasant occupations, a crumpled roseleaf in the bed, a wrinkle in some other woman's get up which has escaped her own, turn loose a stream of fault-finding disagreeable and contemptible. We might as well decide that we all have something to bear in this world and that we will bear it without grumbling; we might as well subscribe to the truth that if it is not one thing, it is another, and set our teeth and say nothing.—Caroline Harris Lee.

St. Thomas, the "first Agnostic," whose festival was placed on the shortest day to punish his unbelief, shares this anniversary with a very militant namesake, Thomas a Becket, pilgrimages to whose shrine inspired Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales."

His specter, known among the vergers as "Thomas a Backet's ghost," can be seen occasionally in the crypt of Canterbury cathedral. It is a real ghost, and has been photographed.

One photograph showed a dim figure of a prelate against a pillar, while another snapshot taken from the same position, but on a different day, revealed no such appearance.

Housekeeping.

We kept housekeeping immediately upon our marriage, for mother said she despised these boarding people; she went to housekeeping when she was married, and she meant all her children should do the same; and if their husbands weren't able to go to housekeeping then they weren't able to be husbands, and there was an end of it; and no two people, she said, brought up in different fashions, could unite their lives into one without some jarring, and a third party was sure to turn that jar into an earthquake; and if there were fewer third parties half the trouble would be done away with; for she believed half the divorces and separations and quarrels in the state were brought about by boarding house intimacies with third parties.—Harriet Prescott Spofford.

WILL AFFECT ACTIVITY AT THE VARIOUS LOCKS

The suspension of work at all of the mines along the Monongahela river, at least the union mines, will seriously reduce the amount of traffic passing through the various locks. However it is expected there will be some coal shipped from the upper reaches of the river, although the total amount will be small in comparison with former months.

GEORGE BENDER VISITS IN CHARLEROI

George Bender, a former resident of Charleroi, now a patient in the Walter Reed hospital, and who at one time had been declared legally dead by the courts of Washington county, arrived in Charleroi today. While here he called upon M. T. Crowley, who is administrator for an estate in which Mr. Bender is interested.

ALL TEACHERS MEMBERS OF STATE ASSOCIATION

All of the sixty-nine teachers of the Charleroi public schools have united with the Pennsylvania State Educational Association, thus giving the local district a one hundred per cent membership. The meeting of the Association will be held this year at Philadelphia some time late in December.

After being continuously in session for five years, laboring always for France in that country's greatest crisis, the French parliament known as the Chamber of Deputies has now, after ratifying the treaty, gone home to take a well-earned rest.

CHARGED WITH ENTERING DISTILLERY

Three young men, Edward J. Hatfield of Waynesburg, who has been living in Washington for several months, and Russel Dager and Frank Hess, who claim Indianapolis as their home city, were arrested in Washington on Friday, on advice from the police at Brownsville. The young men were charged with entering the bonded warehouse of Thompson Distilling Company at Brownsville, but got away before the local officers could apprehend them. Washington officers were told to be on the lookout for an automobile bearing a certain number, and when it appeared the young men were arrested.

They were arraigned in the Federal court at Pittsburg late in the afternoon and each held under $2,000 bail for their appearance.

EARNEST WORKERS ENJOY HALLOWE'EN

Members of the "Earnest Workers" class of the Washington Avenue Presbyterian Sunday school were entertained last evening at the home of Mrs. Ellis Allman, on Shady avenue. Spooks and goblins of every description filled the house to its utmost capacity, and much genuine fun was had in discovering the identity of the guests, after which a fine luncheon was served by the genial hostess.

WANT SCHOOLS TO OBSERVE ARMISTICE DAY

School teachers and children throughout the state are called upon by Superintendent of Public Instruction Dr. Thomas E. Finnegan, to assist in the celebration of armistice day, November 11, and also to observe and assist in the collection of war data during the week of November 9, which has been recommended for observance by the Pennsylvania war history commission as "war history week."

ALTER-AD COMPANY HAS BEEN CHARTERED

The Electric Alter-Ad Company, composed of Charleroi business men, was incorporated under the laws of the state of Pennsylvania, the charter bearing date of October 22. The company has been organized by the election of George W. Might as the President, J. D. Berryman as vice president, and Duncan Berryman as secretary-treasurer. The directors are George W. Might, J. D. Berryman and T. L. Dainty. General Manager, T. L. Dainty

It is the purpose of the company to erect signs similar to the one now located on the hillside opposite Charleroi, although the new designs will have many improved features, as well as larger surface. Arrangements are now under way for the erection of one of these signs in the vicinity of Pittsburg. The local sign is also closed down for the present in order to make improvements, among which will be an increase in length from 700 to 800 feet. It is the purpose of the company to standardize its signs, and thus be in position to erect one of the structures on very short notice.

The following advertisement appeared in the Birmingham press in April, 1806: Thirty guineas reward. Whereas a malicious and unfounded report having been industrially propagated (tending to injure the characters of James, John and Thomas Collings), stating that each have at times appeared in disguised Habit (representing the devil) with an intent to extort money from the fearful, whoever can discover the author of this report shall receive the above named by applying to James Collings, Cottage lane, near the sand pits, Birmingham, April 14, 1806.

Marvelous Memories.

It is claimed for Mr. Timmins, the Shakespearean scholar who has just died, that at the age of twenty-one he recited the whole of "Hamlet" from memory. Among the professional reciters such a feat would not be regarded as very remarkable.

The late Samuel Brandram knew by heart practically the whole of Shakespeare, and Shakespeare was only one of his many favorites.

In his "Nights With the Poets and Humorists" Brandram drew from all sources, read nothing and was never known to forget a line.—London Chronicle.

An Endless Chain.

"We're very unsettled in our flat," said the worried-looking man at the club.

"What's the trouble?" asked his friend.

"Well, our children keep the next-door neighbors awake, so they pass the time by playing the piano; that makes the pet dog next door to them bark, and that keeps the children next door awake, and there's so much noise through the building that there's no chance at all of our children going to sleep."

Traveling and Flying.

The point in space toward which the sun with its planets is voyaging at the rate of a million miles a day now lies directly overhead early in the evening. The exact location of this point has not been finally determined, but it lies somewhere in the neighborhood of the brilliant star Vega. Do you feel that you are shooting upward, head first, about 25 times as fast as a cannonball?

Leonardo's Handwriting.

Domestic Cat Distinct Species.

The Egyptian cat seemed to have a good claim to the honor of being the ancestor of the domestic cat, both on account of its tapering tail and size, in which it bears a great similarity to the domestic cat. But peculiarities which were discovered in its dentition were sufficient to remove its claim. So it seems best to consider the domestic cat a distinct species.

The Rattlesnake's Rattle.

The rattle of the rattlesnake is developed from the single conical scale or epidermal spine, which in most snakes forms the internal tegument of the tail. The bone on which the roof of the rattle rests consists of the last caudal vertebra and is covered with a skin which is the beginning of the rattle in young rattlesnakes.

How Was the Carothers Ticket Nominated?

READ

Judge McIlvaine acting as the retu n board of the election for the September primaries, 1919, found and reported, inte · alia, the following:

"The return board on the examina'ion of the papers laid before it in the discharge of its duties incidentally discovere) that the election boards of 125 election precincts added names to the registry assessor's list of voters, giving them a party enrollment, changed the party enrollment of voters already on the voters list and changed the names of persons found on the registry list. These names were added to the list of the voters after they h·d voted and their votes were counted in the returns made.

"I have attached, for your information and the information of the public, a schedule of the precincts where changes were made and the number and character of the changes made in the various registry lists, with the hope that this publicity will prevent criminal prosecution that surely ought to follow if such wholesale disregard of the law is again indulged in."

District Attorney I. W. Baum made the following statement as published in The Washington Reporter, of October 14th, 1919, concerning the recent primary election:

"The official count shows 1,700 illegal votes cast, which result is attributed to the double-dealing of C. E. Carothers, who had been his confident in this campaign for over three months; that in the last minute, perhaps 2 o'clock, Tuesday morning of the election, Mr. Carothers took advantage of his knowledge and information and stabbed him in the back; that the expense accounts recently filed by his opponent and others are very illuminating, and in addition to his believing that his friend Mr. Carothers was straigh', it now appears that Charles Miller in [illegible] he had also put confidence, not only was not for him, but contributed $1,500 to his opponent's campaign, and that all this double-dealing by his friends resulted in Mr. Cummins receiving the nomination."

MR. VOTER, WILL YOU ENDORSE BY YOUR VOTE A TICKET SO NOMINATED?

Stefansson Compares Him With the Fox, to the Disadvantage of the Smaller Animal

The wisdom of the fox is not so evident as the saying is widespread, but the more I see of wolves the more respect I have for their intelligence, which is unique among the nonhuman inhabitants of the North.

The second day on the new land I met a wolf that came running toward me at first, for he could not fail to mistake me at a distance for a caribou, but when he got within two hundred yards and could see more plainly he realized my strangeness and, what is truly remarkable, inferred that I might be dangerous. This wolf could certainly never have seen a human being before, and the only dark thing of size comparable to mine that he had ever seen must have been either a caribou or a muskox. The caribou are his prey, and while he seldom kills a muskox he at least has no reason to fear that exceptionally clumsy and slow-moving animal.

But at two hundred yards this wolf paused and, after a good look that satisfied him that I was something new in his experience, commenced to circle me at that distance to get my wind. When he got it it took him off at top speed. The similarly unsophisticated foxes of this region will commonly run within ten or fifteen yards of you and follow you around for miles, barking like a toy dog following a pedestrian.—Vilhjalmur Stefansson in Harper's Magazine.

EXERCISE MAY BE OVERDONE

Nature's Signals to Desist Should Be Heeded by Those Who Would Preserve Health.

"Pursued ostensibly to promote personal welfare, physical exercise is not infrequently carried to a point of overdoing, which results in injury rather than benefit," says the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Commenting on some observations made on aviators, it says the test of the value of an exercise lies in the physiological adjustments that it induces. "If the heart reduces its rate of beating and is less sensitive to exercise, the training is commendable. Training should make the heart and other muscles better and endure fatiguing exercises better than the untrained heart does. Consequently, if the heart reacts excessively as a result of work; if there is a rapid rise in pulse rate, which returns to its normal only after a long interval, the fundamental aim of exercise for health has not been accomplished. The symptoms of an overworked mechanism are at hand. However advantageous vigorous training may be in the great majority of cases, failure to adjust to the increased demand of work is always a signal to desist and an indication that other modes of perfecting the organism should be sought."

Remarkable Thinness.

Prof. J. Perrin has made a study of soap bubbles—just the kind that little folks blow with clay pipes—and he announces that they are five millimicrons thick. This means that it would take more than five million films of a soap bubble to make one inch of thickness. While this is getting down pretty fine, still the elementary leaflet of mica is finer. Mica can be split down to a thickness of one molecule, which is thinner than the thickness of the skin of a soap bubble, which suggests that the latter must be crystalline in structure. Just before a soap bubble bursts dark spots form on it. He found that these housed still darker, smaller spots. These are droplets of water surrounded by strata condensed upon the membrane. They are described as being like dust motes in a sunbeam.

Gentleness is a natural element. To train, restrain or subdue the character so that it will manifest this virtue is not to give to that character the element of gentleness. The result will be to tame but not to make gentle. When one is able to control by watchfulness his actions, so that they result in gentleness, he possesses something less than gentleness. Gentleness must be natural to be truly genuine. Where love, latent and fervent, abounds, that is the sort of soul that possesses gentleness. It is out of the abundance of the heart that the mouth should speak. It is from the abundance of the regenerate spirit that the soul shall unveil the grace of gentleness in myriad relations. Disposition, temper and manner are in the province of this virtue. They must possess it.—Christian Intelligencer.

Cotton in the Far North.

Flowers grow profusely in many parts of the arctic regions. One of the most frequently met with is the cotton plant. Northern miners have a saying that wherever cotton blooms, ice is not far below. One may walk for miles, between the months of June and August, through fields of cotton plants in flower, the white, silky tops swaying in the arctic breeze. At present little use is made of it, from an industrial point of view, except where the down is gathered for filling pillows. The flowers bloom luxuriantly, as is natural where the sun shines continuously during the summer months. Among others, the flower-hunter may gather purple larkspur, bluebells, monk's hood, primroses, asters, lilies-of-the-valley and even a kind of arctic geranium, pink or white in color.

Do You Remember---November 11

that day last year when we all went wild---threw our hats in the air, rang the bells and blew the whistles in sheer delight because the signing of the armistice meant the end of the war?

It was the end of a period of destruction during which we "went without," that production might center on materials for war.

On the anniversary of Armistice Day, November 11, let all Americans pledge themselves to work together and stop waste. Only in this way can we make up the years of lost production and again know peace with plenty.

The Greatest Improvement In Riding Comfort Since The Introduction of Pneumatic Tires

HERE is a brand new type of car. It solves the problem which has baffled automotive engineers—how to combine riding comfort with light weight and economy.

Our new Three-Point Cantilever Springs make this possible.

These are the first springs of their kind and they are made of chrome vanadium steel. They are exclusive with Overland.

Because of these springs, Overland 4 combines the riding qualities of large heavy, expensive, long wheelbase cars, together with the advantages and economy of small light cars.

With 100-inch wheelbase, Overland 4 has the luxurious riding ease of 120-inch Springbase.

The exclusive, Three-Point Cantilever Springs cushion the car so that it rides well on all roads: they reduce choppy rebounds and side swaying, protect the car from road shocks and prolong its life, minimize twisting or racking of frame and body, enable the car to hold the road better.

Its light weight makes possible great economy of gasoline and tires.

High quality materials insure durability. All vital parts of the front axle and steering gear and all highly stressed gears and shafts for driving the car are made of alloy steel.

The equipment list of Overland 4 is high grade, including Auto-Lite Starter and Lighting System—Electric Horn—Marshall Divan Upholstery—Springs—Demountable Rims—Three Speed Transmission—Slanting Rain Vision Windshield—Tillotson Carburetor—U. S. L. Batteries and many other high quality conveniences.

In every respect Overland 4 is a quality car. The body is all steel, all enamel, the brightest, hardest, most lasting finish.

Overland 4 has been tested for two years and more than 250,000 miles over the Rocky Mountains, prairies, through deep mud and scorching deserts—through quick sharp climatic changes. As a result of these tests we were able to judge the car's performance under every condition and to perfect it before offering it to the public.

There is no previous car of any size or price to adequately compare with the character of service Overland 4 introduces.

The farther you ride in it the more you will appreciate it. Come in, see the car and ask for booklet. The demand will be greater than the supply for a long time.

Overland 4 Touring, $845; Roadster, $845; Coupe, $1325; Sedan, $1375. Prices f. o. b. Toledo.

The "carat," the unit of weight peculiar to jewelry, was introduced from India. Man sought to record the weight of small objects by using tiny seeds. The barley grain was used in Europe. In the East the seeds of a vetch were in use, and it is from the Greek word for vetch (keration) that the now familiar term "carat" is derived.

Best Fruits of Romance.

A speaker was taken aback during a Sunday school session. He had been commenting on the blessings of matrimony, and just to see whether or not the class was really paying attention, asked one girl what she considered to be the best fruits of romance. The girl pondered a moment and then answered: "I should say the wedding date and the bridal pair."

OCTOBER WAS A VERY WET MONTH

The month of October just closed made a record in the way of precipitation and temperature. It was the wettest month since 1890, and the temperature was also the highest since that year. The precipitation for the month was 5.17, making an excess above normal of 2.81. In the way of temperature the highest occurred on the second of the month, when it reached 85, and the lowest on the 13th, when it reached 39 degrees.
